Minister of Justice, Márcio Thomaz Bastos

The Tupinikim and Guarani communities are still waiting for the regularization of their 18.070 hectares of land in the state of Espírito Santo. This land was identified in the period 1994-1998 as indigenous territories by the anthropologists of the Brazilian government's Indigenous Institute FUNAI. It therefore rightfully belongs to the Tupinikim and Guarani communities. Today 11,009 hectares of this land is occupied by Aracruz Celulose and this land has yet to be regularised by your decision and, after that, the homologation of the President of the Republic.

I respectfully ask you to urgently decide in favour of the immediate regularization of the indigenous lands. Doing so would finally guarantee the land rights of these two indigenous peoples in Espírito Santo, so that they can realize their right to feed themselves on these lands.
